Entry Information and Evaluation Criteria
• Nominations are rated individually by a panel of distinguished park and recreation professionals, who are independent of the PRPS Recognition and Awards Committee.

• The nominated agency must have at least one member of PRPS in order to qualify.

• The agency being nominated must have shown the benefits and outcomes in providing public park and recreation services in the past five years.

• Provide a detailed narrative which describes how the municipal park, recreation and/or therapeutic and leisure service agency has demonstrated a significant achievement(s) or level of distinction in the recent past. Indicate how the agency positions itself as an essential service to its constituency, how they have effected positive change from their initiatives, and their efforts to be exciting, creative and resourceful in their provision of recreation and park opportunities. Has the agency overcome any period of hardship or a particular obstacle in providing recreation and park services, and placed or returned itself to a level of prominence in the public perspective? The focus of the narrative should be to highlight what sets this agency apart from others and why it deserves this recognition.
